

This is a sample of the standard USENIX consent form currently in use by our conferences.

This is intended for informational use only. Please see an individual event's website for the actual consent form.

AUTHORIZATION AND LICENSE TO PUBLISH

A major mission of the USENIX Association ("USENIX") is to provide for the creation and dissemination of new knowledge. Unlike most publishers, USENIX permits authors to retain their ownership of the copyrights in their works. We therefore require each author to provide written consent giving USENIX the right to publish his or her work. Therefore, the parties agree as follows:

- 1. Grant of Rights to Publish. You hereby grant to The USENIX Association ("USENIX"), the right to publish and re-publish the paper provisionally entitled:

Paper Title: _____

PLEASE FILL IN THE TITLE HERE

(the "Paper") electronically and in audiovisual formats (the "Rights"). USENIX's rights are non-exclusive, worldwide, perpetual and irrevocable, but also non-sublicensable and non-transferable. Among the rights you hereby grant to USENIX is the right to be the first publisher of the Paper. USENIX initially plans to publish the Paper in the following publication: Proceedings of the [Conference Title] (the "Original Publication") and to post the files indefinitely for display on the USENIX website, but may also otherwise disseminate the Paper, as well as the oral presentation of the Paper, on media, as a live broadcast, and in any other electronic or audiovisual format chosen by USENIX. Copyrights are retained by the authors.

- 2. Posting. You retain all rights in the Paper subject to the non-exclusive rights granted to USENIX in Section 1 above.
- 3. Notice Request. USENIX will include the following notice on the first page of the Original Publication: "Copyright to the individual works is retained by the author[s]."
- 4. Subsequent Publication by Author. You must include a notice of original publication by USENIX in any subsequent publication of the Paper or a revised version of the Paper.
- 5. Warranties. You warrant that:
 - a. You are the sole author and owner of the Paper and the rights pertaining thereto or, if the Paper is a work of joint authorship, you are signing as to your legal rights as joint author to give USENIX permission to publish the Paper. If the Paper is owned by your employer, you warrant that you have obtained permission to enter into this agreement and to grant the rights herein described to USENIX.
 - b. USENIX does not need the permission of any other party to exercise the rights granted herein.
 - c. The Paper does not contain any defamatory or other unlawful content.
 - d. The Paper does not infringe upon the rights of others.
 - e. The Paper and its contents are original to you.
 - f. The Paper is not currently submitted for publication elsewhere and has not been previously published elsewhere.
 - g. If the Paper contains any materials protected by copyright law, written permission from the copyright holders has been obtained, copies are attached to this document, and proper credit has been given in the Paper. If using a Creative Commons license, you have fulfilled all licensing requirements.
- 6. Right to Withdraw Access. USENIX reserves the right to remove content and publications under its control from public access at any time for any reason. Occasionally, USENIX receives notices alleging that the content it publishes may infringe third-party rights or may otherwise violate some law or regulation. USENIX generally does not take a position on the merits of such allegations. Rather, USENIX will inform the author or speaker of the allegations, refer the complainant to the author or speaker, and may remove the identified content or publication from public access. USENIX may restore the material, at its discretion, when it deems appropriate. The author or speaker will be solely responsible for resolving the complaint. USENIX also may send the notice containing the allegations to Lumen (lumendatabase.org) and/or similar organizations.

USENIX Code of Conduct Guidelines

Speakers are responsible for the content of their presentations, but USENIX requests that speakers be cognizant of potentially offensive actions, language, or imagery, and that they consider whether it is necessary to convey their message. If they do decide to include it, USENIX asks that they warn the audience, at the beginning of the talk, and provide them with the opportunity to leave the room to avoid seeing or hearing the material.

Your signature below grants USENIX the right to publish and also indicates that you have read the USENIX Event Code of Conduct and Guidelines for Speakers available at www.usenix.org/conferences/coc.

Date: _____

Signature of Author(s) _____

Printed Name(s) of Author(s) _____

Authorized Signature for USENIX _____

Exemption for employees of the United States Government:

I attest that the above paper was prepared as part of the official duties of the author(s) as employees of the US Government and that a transfer of copyright cannot be made.

INITIALS

SAMPLE
NOT INTENDED FOR ACTUAL USE