

Proceedings of the
32nd USENIX Security Symposium
Errata Slip #2

In the paper “You’ve Got Report: Measurement and Security Implications of DMARC Reporting” by Md. Ishtiaq Ashiq and Weitong Li, Virginia Tech; Tobias Fiebig, Max-Planck-Institut für Informatik; Taejoong Chung, Virginia Tech (Thursday session, “Email and Phishing,” pp. 4123–4137 of the Proceedings), the authors have provided the following correction on page 4124.

Original text:

To this end, we publicly release all of our analysis code and data to the research community at <https://dmarc-study.github.io/>

Corrected text:

To this end, we publicly release all of our analysis code and data to the research community at <https://dmarestudy.github.io/>